Elderly couple found dead near car

BY SYLVIA COLE

Review Staff

Parked in the middle of a secluded dirt road, seven kilometres north of Harold Creek Road, was a 2007 Ford Sebring, with an empty fuel tank and no passengers.

Nearby, recreational dirt bikers found the bodies of an elderly couple, marking what Didsbury RCMP are calling a "truly tragic" event.

Police were called to the Water Valley area 6 p.m. last Wednesday when two recreational dirt bikers reported finding a body and an abandoned car. Sgt. Jeff Jacobson said they suspected the car belonged to an elderly Calgary couple, Allen and Margaret Berrington – both in their 90s – who were reported missing May 31.

They were last seen celebrating Margaret's 91st birthday with family four days prior.

RCMP searched the area with police dogs and Red Deer's forensic identification unit and found a woman a few kilometres from the car. Her husband lay just 10 feet away.

What the couple was doing on an isolated road 40 kilometres west of Water Valley remains a mystery. Community members say the road is isolated and just wide enough for one vehicle.

Highway 579 has steep hills and winding corners, and turns into gravel at Harold Creek Road.

"The roads just get narrower and more windy the further you drive," said Jodi Ouellette, owner of Derry and Wallis in the Water Valley community.

"I live near the area where they went off the road and it can get ugly there," she said.

During bad weather Ouellette will tell friends not to visit because the roads can turn to sludge.

"On Sunday my husband and I love to fill up our coffee mugs and just go for a drive ... there's trees all around and the view is just beautiful ... but we know the area."

According to police, the Berringtons turned off the highway onto the well-forested oil lease road. It's not recommended for drivers and there's no cellphone reception.

It's unknown how long the couple were roaming the wilderness.

RCMP spokesperson, Sgt. Patrick Webb said it's believed the couple ran out of gas and headed on foot into to look for help, when they died.

Toxicology reports released Friday indicate husband and wife died of natural causes, perhaps exposure.

No foul play is suspected.

"It was very cold and there were snow conditions during the week they went missing ... we don't know when they got there but they were in the foothills region and the weather can get quite severe," he said.

The Berringtons were married for almost seven decades.

Didsbury scouts celebrate 100 years of history

90-year-old resident honoured for 70 years of service

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM

Review Staff

Didsbury's Scouts have roots that stretch back – way back – into this town's early history.

They were here before the 1914 inferno razed Main Street, the First World War or the Great Depression. The first chapter started 100 years ago when this was but a frontier town with porch-style walkways and wooden storefronts.

And still they march strong.

The longevity of Scouts comes as no surprise to Joyce Mullen, 90. She's spent more than half her life teaching the Scout creed to youngsters in this town – including survival.

In fact, she was honoured last week with a pin and letter from Governor General Michaëlle Jean for spending 70 years with the organization. It was only one of four handed out in Canada this year.

And she's not done yet. Mullen plans on winning the 75-year pin, which is rarely given out according to Scouts Canada.

"I stay in this because I enjoy it. I have more fun with those kids than you can shake a stick at."

With 70 years of experience under her belt, Mullen has become an important fount of history for the local group. She has stories dating back to the early 1900s, told to her by Ernie Clark, the last surviving member of the original club.

Her own experience started in 1940 as a Guide leader. She signed up for the Air Force two years later and when she got back in 1945, spent 12 years bouncing between the role of Brownie leader and committee chairperson for the Scouts organization.

It wasn't until 1957, that her oldest child joined Cubs and she took on the role of Cub leader or Akira. Those boys, she tells fondly, were "little monkeys."

There were about 30 youngsters, between the ages of 8 and 10, who'd meet upstairs in the old Elks Hall, where the apartments above JD's Place Restaurant now stand.

When Mullen could spare time from tending her chickens, she'd take the boys on field trips into Calgary to visit the radio station, the Herald office or aquarium. It was always a hassle trying to get them to behave, she said.

"Can you imagine trying to look after 30 boys? I remember lining them up two by two outside the Hudson's Bay Company. They needed to go down to the bargain basement for a bathroom break. I tapped each hand and told them they had to hang onto this invisible rope," she said.

"When they got down to the basement everyone was looking at them because they were lined up so nice and straight. One lady came up to one of my boys and asked what he was doing."

"He looked up to her and said 'well, I'm hanging onto an invisible rope. Our Akira told us if we drop it, we're dead.'"

Mullen chuckles. It sounded a lot different coming out of his mouth, than it had coming out of hers.

U18 in win column

BY TAMARA CUNNINGHAM
Review Staff

Didsbury U18 fought hard on Bowden's pitch last week to snap a four-game losing streak, 2-0.

The win could herald a turn for the team, which has been struggling to put points in the win column since the season kicked off in May.

"There's no doubt, the season has started off slow. There were times when players were so spread out all over the place that I didn't know what position my team was playing," said coach AJ Danks.

"It all came together this game."

The U18 team is carrying low numbers this year, with an average 10 showing up for games. That means no subs; so when the team gets tired, their opponents close in.

After two losses, Danks changed the lineup. It seems to be paying off, he said.

The formation used to be three defence, four mid-field and three forward. It's now 3-3-4 until the team can take the lead, then they switch to 4-3-3.

Four U16 players were also pulled up to compete in Bowden, including last Tuesday's scorer, Kyle Boody.

"This guy is one of our talented players. He finds the strongest player on the opposite team and sticks to him - takes that person out of the game," Danks said.

KYLE BOODY
U18 athlete

In Tuesday night's match against Bowden, Jordan Dolter squeezed in a goal late in the first half for a 1-0 lead, while Kyle Boody came early in the second to make the final goal.

"It's my dream to make pro soccer so to be called up to the U18 league and then to help them win their first game, felt pretty amazing," said 15-year-old Boody.

"I think we played really well, overall."

Boody plans to continue to score for the U18 as a recent recruit.

Veteran goalie Steini Daub said the team worked hard for the win. He himself had his first shutout of the season. Whether the team can continue to stay in the win column, however, is anyone's call.

The team is matched up against strong opponents this season. Acme and Three Hills sit in first and second, undefeated, while Carstairs comes in third with four wins and three losses.

"We were tied with Bowden for last so winning doesn't say too much. I mean we have good players and we played good but we are going to be up against teams that are great," he said.

"We know this season is going to have some challenges."

The U18 team took its second win against Crossfield last Thursday, June 3. The next game will be at Ross Ford against Olds U18, 7:15 on June 10.

Editorial Prison pension proposal right on target

DAN SINGLETON

The Harper government has announced plans to take away social security benefits such as Old Age pensions from some inmates serving time in federal penitentiaries.

If approved by Parliament, the move would see inmates who are incarcerated in federal prison for two years or more lose their government payouts.

Central Alberta Conservative MP Blake Richards says stripping murderers such as serial child killer Clifford Olsen of their Old Age pensions is the right thing to do, sending the message that murderers cannot and should not benefit from their crimes.

"Canadians were appalled to learn recently that this ruthless mass murderer has begun to collect social security benefits, such as Old Age Security, while serving time in prison for his vile crimes," said Richards.

"It is wrong and unjust that prisoners who have caused such devastation and harm to society should still be the recipients of entitlements that are meant to support society."

When it comes to scum like Clifford Olsen – a man so despicable that soon after murdering 11 B.C. children he virtually forced the government into a cash-for-bodies deal – any and all efforts to keep him out of society are worthwhile, including this one.

Stripping Olsen of the Old Age pension cheques, what MP Richards rightly calls 'entitlements meant to support society', is a fitting and just way to deal with such a reprehensible individual.

On top of the fact that Canadians want murderers such as Olsen stripped of any and all benefits of their crimes, taking away inmate pensions will also save taxpayers millions and millions of dollars, money that can be much better spent supporting law-abiding seniors and others.

Hopefully MPs of all parties will put aside their differences and ensure the swift passage of this new legislation. It's about justice for the victims of crimes and about punishment of the guilty.

Of course the government must also live up to its assurances that the changes will not adversely impact the families of the murderers. In Canada we don't punish people because they happen to be related to criminals, and these changes certainly must include safeguards to make sure that doesn't happen.

"Our government through these changes, is making a strong statement that we will not allow the privileges that rightly belong to law-abiding citizens of Canada to also be enjoyed by criminals who, by the nature of their crimes, have forfeited their place in our society," says MP Richards.

The Harper government should be applauded for its efforts to close these inmate pension loopholes – and MPs of all stripes should work together to make it happen.

Letter to the editor Public should demand Crown do their job

Re: Ontario former AG Bryant - Charges Dropped

Someone, likely a seasoned, educated, professional accident investigator did several things with the case against Mr. Bryant.

Investigated, interviewed and obtained statements from witnesses, collected physical evidence, drafted a scene drawing, analyzed all the evidence, then satisfied either a judge or a justice of the peace that he/she was satisfied and swore under oath or affirmation, on the basis of reasonable and probable grounds, that the elements necessary to prove the charge were there.

The file was then referred to Crown counsel for approval - there in lies the problem.

We all know that some junior or less than stellar lawyers opt to serve the government; either out of an altruistic bent, wanting to be on the right side of the ongoing battle against crime and criminals, or because they are not very good at what they have chosen to do and are fortunate to have a spot in the government payroll lineup.

They may not be trained in the accident reconstruction and investigation arts. They serve political masters, which the police do not (at least at the investigative level). The police have no vested interest in what happens beyond the laying of the charge - lawyers most certainly do, even Crown counsel. Check the lists of public office holders against the memberships of the bars.

So, the case is prevented from going to trial because a mediocre lawyer, overworked, underpaid and fighting an uphill battle, decides that it's not a slam-dunk. We, the public, the defendant, families and friends of the victim are denied the scrutiny only a fair and impartial trial can bring to the fore. We wonder whether there were special considerations given to the accused because of his/her position or status, what was wrong with the sworn police officer who swore the information before a justice, whether the money saved at trial was worth it.

Just as in the case of Rahim Jaffer, a police officer and his supervisors believed the evidence warranted the charge and the matter should be subject to the fairest deliberation we can muster, that of our courts and justices/juries. Most of us were astounded and found the process to be repugnant. Likewise, the judge and jury in Bryant's matter is usurped by functionaries in the Crown's office. Is that where a fair and impartial analysis should take place? Should the bean-counters and former legal-aid lawyers decide these cases? What function of a transparent, judicious, predictable legal system does all of this serve?

There's a bad taste in my mouth when lawyers decide to take a pass on lawyers/politicians' cases that ought properly to go before the bench. I'll bet that an innocent party would rather have exoneration on the facts than a 'pass' engineered by a hack. I sure would. Is it inconceivable that the information the Crown relies upon to drop the charges is too complicated for a judge?

A fundamental and important aspect of life in free, democratic, and just society is transparency, particularly where life, liberty and pursuit of whatever it is one wishes to pursue are at stake.

Be very careful, my friends and fellow citizens for this is how it starts. Vested interests begin to chip away at the fundamentals in the name of saving you money, time and effort. Publication bans abound, in camera (secret) deliberations become the order of the day, and 'friends of friends' are steered around the courts. These courts we all pay for, we should hold up to close scrutiny and we should demand that the players to do their jobs.

There seems to be a sense of something 'bringing the administration of justice into disrepute' in this country; more and more, it bears the address of provincial or federal governments.

Scouts

In the late 1960s, Didsbury started Cub hockey, with 51 players and four local teams. A few years later it would compete with the newly created Didsbury Minor Hockey League. Kids could only sign up for one club or another.

According to Mullen – the coach – that was because Cub hockey went by her rules. There was no cussing, bad sportsmanship or unnecessary violence. Flouting the rules could cost players a game or spot on the team.

Ironically Mullen trained the players with 'old elbows' or Gordie Howe's drills. In five decades of play the hockey legend won a reputation for rough play – and became a favourite of hers.

Several of the athletes who stuck with Cub hockey – and Mullen's rules – went on to play in the AJHL or WHL. Former Cub, Mike Clark, used to send her letters and pictures detailing his hockey career.

Clark was a third-round pick for the Philadelphia Flyers and round-two pick for the New England Whalers in 1973. He moved up the ranks from the AJHL and WHL to play for the Richmond Robins, Philadelphia Firebirds, Flint Generals and Springfield Indians.

"Years later he told me that his experience in Cub hockey really helped ... it's good to hear you've affected someone like that," she said.

Mullen and Linda Rose, group commissioner, hope to hear stories about Cub hockey and other events from former club members during a centennial celebration, August 21. Former scouts are invited to share memories and meet old friends or send in stories.

Those interested in attending or who have stories they want to send in, should contact Linda Rose at (403) 335-4846 or didsburyscouting@hotmail.com by August 3.

HIGH-DEMAND TRAINING IN WATER MANAGEMENT NOW AVAILABLE IN CALGARY

JEAN BERNICE BRAUTIGAM

Jean, beloved wife of Max Brautigam of Didsbury, Alberta, married for 47 years, passed away on June 1, 2010 at Didsbury Hospital after a lengthy battle with cancer, at the age of 67.

She leaves to cherish her memory her husband and their children: son Kevin of Biggar, Saskatchewan, and daughter Karla of Didsbury; her only sister, Irene Jackle (Harold) of Fox Valley, Saskatchewan; and her brothers Mel of Battleford, Saskatchewan, Rodney (Diane) of Abbotsford, British Columbia, Hilbert (Arlene) of Regina, Saskatchewan, Douglas (Dorrie) of Calgary, Alberta, as well as sister-in-law, Wilma (Art) and Ellie (Reuben), and numerous nieces, nephews and friends.

She was predeceased by her father, Erwin Wenzel, mother, Sidonia, and three brothers: Art, Reuben, and Merrel.

Jean was born on the family farm, south of Leader, Saskatchewan. On November 24, 1962, she married Max, and together they raised their children on the family farm south of Prelate, Saskatchewan.

Jean enjoyed the great outdoors, the serenity of a beautiful sunrise or sunset. She enjoyed working in the earth and loved watching the growing vegetables and flowers. In her semiretirement and retirement years, she enjoyed quilting and doing multiple crafts.

Family was very important to Jean, and on numerous occasions, she could be found at the centre of the day's activities, lending a helping hand, an encouraging word, a beaming smile or a hearty laugh. Her spirit and inquisitive nature led her on many an adventure, sweeping many along for the ride! She was an active member in her church life, and a huge supporter of any activity of her children, relatives, or her vast array of friends. She enjoyed spending time with her husband, children, brothers and sisters, nieces, nephews, friends - anyone who had a smile and a positive word.

An incredible willpower emerged when Jean became ill. Receiving a crushing diagnosis of cancer, Jean would rally, always holding the disease at bay, in the process, keeping the spirits high of those who dearly loved her. Strong to the very end, our Mother, quietly, bravely, and with a deep love and concern for her family and friends, passed into the Lord's hands.

Services were held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Olds, Alberta, June 7, 2010 at 1 p.m. with Pastor John Lentz officiating. Internment was at Didsbury Cemetery.

Tributes may be made in Jean's memory to St. Paul's Lutheran Church or the Didsbury Hospital.

It's a wonderful thing to go through life without worrying about what tomorrow may bring. You can have even more of that feeling with prearrangement. Prearrangement takes care of all the decisions—so your family won't have to. Now isn't that reassuring?
